Skipper and Crew On Alert Every Second of Cruise Periods

"SUB" RESPONDS WELL Men 'Double-Quick' To Battle Stations As Alarm Is Sounded

By John R. Henry
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
ABOARD A U. S. SUBMARINE, NEAR THE ATLANTIC COAST, Mar. 31—Plunged nearly 25 fathoms below the stormy surface of the Atlantic in one of America's most formidable submarines, I learned today the sensations experienced by our undersea warriors when danger is imminent and action inevitable.

In the course of a brief cruise, an Allied merchant ship came close, and I studied its appearance through an upraised periscope. It would have been helpless prey had we been an enemy.

I also heard an alarm bell hustle our personnel to battle stations. I noted their reactions, and reacted myself when the submarine almost scraped the bottom.

All of these things occurred shortly after we had embarked from a coastal naval base.

The sky was heavily overcast with slate grey clouds as we boarded the submersible. A heavy, sharp wind churned the water to choppyness before our ship was under way.

Skipper of the craft, Lt. Commander J. F. Davidson, of Warren, Pa., decided to dive soon after we reached sufficiently deep water.

Orders were barked, the six officers and 44 men snapped into action, hatches clanged shut and tanks were blown. "Close all water tight doors and bulkhead flappers," the Captain howled; then a klaxon horn sounded, and I knew we were away to the deep. It was my maiden submarine dive. I was slightly nervous.

Less than a minute passed when all

Suggests Housing Project Be Called "Bristol Terrace"

Another suggestion has been received by the Courier for a name for the Defense Housing Project now in the course of construction on Beaver street.

This latest suggestion comes from Paul J. Barrett, Esq. Mr. Barrett suggests that the project be called "Bristol Terrace." Mr. Barrett writes: "That section has been referred to, by that name, for many years by the people of Bristol and I feel that the new Housing Project should assume that title."

Two more names have been suggested to the Courier for the Housing Project for Defense Workers on Beaver street. Those will be forwarded to the proper governmental authorities. Jacob Smith, Croydon, suggests the name of Beaver Heights. Frederick Bianco offers the name of Bristol Heights or Beaver Heights.

LATEST NEWS BULLETINS

U. S. Troops Repulse Japanese at Corregidor

Washington—The battle of the Philippines reached a new pitch today when the War Department reported that Lieut. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright's troops repulsed waves of Japanese attacks in savage hand-to-hand bayonet fighting as Corregidor sustained its 11th air attack with little damage.

The War Department conceded however that the fierce enemy onslaught on Bataan had cost the American-Philippine forces some of their advanced positions, but stated that the attack "was brought to a halt before it reached our main line."

The communique also disclosed that the Japanese high command has formally apologized for the ruthless bombing of the base hospital in Bataan, claiming that the air-raid was "unintentional."

Bucks Co. Institution Gets Check

Harrisburg—State-aid checks were in the mails today for quarterly payments to more than a score of hospitals and institutions. State Treasurer G. Harold Wagner announced. They included the Workmen's Home for the Aged, Warrington, Bucks County, $74.94.

Proposal to India Appears Doomed to Failure

New Delhi—The British proposal offering India dominion status after the war appeared doomed to failure today.

Already there was one definite rejection of the plan and reports were circulated that the All-India Congress Party, representing the huge Hindu population, had decided to turn down the proposals.

The Sikh delegation, which represents 4,500,000 of the nation's 390,000,000 people, was the first to signify dissatisfaction with the plan.

It was expected that the fate of the proposals would be virtually sealed today when the Congress working committee gives its final consideration to the resolution and sums up its conclusions.

Road Blocks Placed by "Japs" Cleared in Burma

London—Imperial forces in Western Burma have cleared the road blocks placed by the Japanese near Shwebo, 10 miles below Prome, a communique from the Burma command revealed today.

"An attack to clear the road blocks as Shweboing did not materialize as the force to the south assisted by two Indian frontier force battalions from the north, opened the road late Monday," the communique said.

The road was opened after hard fighting under intense enemy air action which continued throughout the day.

The Japanese sustained heavy losses in the engagements while casualties among the Imperial forces were moderate.

Claim Germans Lose 45,000 Men in Attempt to Take Sevastopol Base

Moscow—Germany has lost 45,000 men, killed or wounded, through two major attempts to capture the Russian fortress at the great Black Sea naval base of Sevastopol, it was announced officially today.

The large toll inflicted upon the Nazis was revealed as the siege of Sevastopol entered its 150th day.

Both the Russians and the Germans were reported massing large armies along the entire line from Vyazma, on the central front, southward to the industrial city of Kharkov in the Ukraine.

The mid-day communique of the Red army said three more inhabited localities have been retaken during the night. Severe fighting continued meanwhile on the Kalinin front, northwest of Moscow, where 1,000 Germans were reported killed and nine inhabited localities recaptured.

SOLDIER FROM BRISTOL ENJOYS ICELAND LIFE

Maurice McCurry Tells of The Northern Lights and Snow-Capped Mountains

GIFTS FROM RED CROSS

Private Maurice McCurry, Venice avenue, who has been in training in the U. S. Army for the past year, is now in Iceland.

McCurry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. McCurry, has been in that Northern clime for the past two months.

Shortly before reaching Iceland, McCurry stated on a card: "We expect to get our first glimpse of Iceland tomorrow. It seemed funny not seeing land for the last nine days, and it got tiresome looking at the ocean all the time. I was lucky not to get seasick on my first voyage, but there will only be one more that I'll ever be anxious to take. That will be the one going back."

On January 29th, he wrote in part: "Have seen a little of Iceland now, and it is not as terrible as I thought it would be. The weather here is about the same as Pennsylvania in the winter-time, outside of high winds and plenty of rain. The sun does not appear very often, but when it does you don't mind wandering around outside the barracks."

"The people here have a language of their own, and it is funny to hear them talk. Most of them can speak or understand English, however, so it is not so hard on us. They have automobiles, too, both European and American styles. It seems odd to see them driving on the left all the time instead of the right as we do in America. Most of the kids spend their time pushing sleds around. The sleds consist of a chair on two runners which extend about a yard in back of it. They don't sit on them much, but seem to like to ride on the runners instead."

"Their money is also different than ours. Where our dollar is standard they use the krona which is worth about 15.4 cents in American money. Anything lower than a krona is an auror and it takes 100 of them to make a krona. It took us awhile to get used to it, but when we start being paid it we'll understand it better. We don't have much use for money here as the movies are free, and cigarettes only cost 75 cents a carton. There will not be much time for us to wander around as soon as we start our regular work, and there is really nothing for us to go to town for anywhere, outside of a walk or to see the town."

"We've been issued clothing suitable for any weather, in fact I feel like an Eskimo. . . ."

In a letter written February 12th, young McCurry states: "Everything

One Man's Opinion By WALTER KIERNAN (I. N. S. Staff Writer)

Remember the Kearny shipyards which were taken over by the Government with a fanfare of trumpets and handed back with a double ruff of drums after its internal troubles were solved:

They weren't.

The same old issue which brought a strike, seizure by the Navy, and the bouncing of the management in August 1941 is with us again in March 1942.

To be or not to be? To have a union shop or not to have a union shop? That is the question.

It also was the question seven months ago.

Tempus fugit and policy-makers fidget.

Look fellas—do we get to face the facts of life one of these days or do we stumble through the whole blasted war like a bumblebee on a binge ducking showdowns every hour on the hour?

Thought for the day: Annual special blue plate—April fools' day. Just for one day, honey.

CITIZEN SOLDIERS PLAN TO PRODUCE VICTORY VITAMINS

Uncle Sam Wants Every Family To Feed Itself This Summer

SPUR TO GARDENERS

Plaque Being Prepared For Distribution To Home Gardeners

By Raymond Dodd

This is the spring of 1942. On the military fronts armies are girding for the offensive onslaught; on the American home front citizen soldiers are preparing an all-out production of vitamins for victory.

To spur the planting of Victory Gardens to supplement the normal supplies of fruits and vegetables so needed by our fighters, a plaque is being prepared for distribution to home gardeners by the Victory Garden Committee of the Bucks County Council of Defense.

Miss E. Helaine Littleman, chairman of the Committee, reports:

"This is more than a mere shield. It is a badge of patriotic service. Its display on lawn or on a window will announce to all that here is a family giving its time and effort, not only to conserve the nation's food supplies, but to produce vitamin-crammed foods to help maintain the nation's health."

The plaque will be awarded to anyone joining the Victory Garden drive, no matter whether the patch is of the back or side yard variety, or a large tract being worked jointly by a pool of neighbors.

Again, however, before you leap to spade and hoe. The Committee has available a U. S. Department of Agriculture booklet, and the county agent's office, a number of publications to prevent waste and personal disappointment.

While Uncle Sam wants every family to feed itself this summer, and perhaps, by canning, right through the winter, no profit will accrue to the nation or the individual if the home gardeners undertake the impossible or the impracticable. If you're green at the job of growing things, Uncle Sam wants you to brush up on his written suggestions.

For instance most people in the county's towns and villages will have little trouble in finding fertile spots on their own properties, or close at hand, but avoid locations that are too steep, too wet, or too shady. A sage bit from the Government booklet:

"If a person insists upon making a garden under adverse conditions, for exercise or pleasure, he should realize that there two years ago."

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

(Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

Choked With Publicity

Washington, March 31. THE Government—financed publicity with which this war is being conducted by the United States has reached a stage that is beyond all reason or excuse. If it did not have its serious side it would be utterly ridiculous. No other nation, either with us or against us, has any such sprawling, foolish and inept propaganda setup.

THE cost and size of these subsidized and leaderless publicity forces have never been approximated at any time anywhere. The accompanying duplication, overlapping, waste and confusion are staggering to contemplate—as bewildering to those who man the machine as to those who are wholly detached from it. But, as the product is observed, even more appalling is its steady growth in volume, in facility and in silliness.

EXISTING conditions are such that recently there has been an outbreak of comment—some exasperated, some amused and some genuinely concerned—from widely separated quarters representing various points of view. There is, for example, the pregnant statement of a writer, favorably inclined to the Administration, in one of the weekly news magazines, that "the Post-office is complaining that the war flood of Government publicity releases, official booklets, etc., has become so huge that it actually slows the handling of regular mail."

THEN there is the series of expensive pamphlets depicting army life and emanating from the "Women's Interests Section of the War Department Bureau of Public Relations."

Others present were: Mrs. P. McGee, the Misses Mary Roarty, Anna and Mary Gallagher, Mary McGee.

FIREMEN ARE TAUGHT HOSE LINE "STRETCHES"

Advanced Course in Fire Fighting is Held at Hulmeville and Langhorne

26 MEN ARE ENROLLED

HULMEVILLE, Apr. 1.—With two fire fighting schools now in operation in lower Bucks County, and two fundamental courses completed during the past winter, the residents of the area are guaranteed increased protection from fires, due to knowledge and practical experience gained by the volunteer firemen of the "lower end."

Lt. James Farley, of the Philadelphia Fire School, has conducted all courses.

The advanced course in fire fighting, being held at the William Penn Fire Co. station here, and at Langhorne Fire Co. station, for a period of 10 weeks, is sponsored by the Public Service Institute of Harrisburg.

All men taking the course have completed a fundamental course, there having been previously conducted two separate classes in fundamentals, one of 18 weeks and one of 15 weeks. All completing the first course automatically became eligible for the second course. There are 26 firemen from

Morrisville Soldier To Be Buried On Saturday

MORRISVILLE, Apr. 1.—A Morrisville youth, Private Frank Elwood Kelly, 22, died Monday following a short illness at LaGarde General Hospital, New Orleans, La. He was the son of John W. and the late Ella G. Kelly, Robertson avenue.

Services will be held on Saturday at three o'clock at funeral parlors, 408 Bellevue avenue, Trenton, N. J., with the Rev. Charles Weller, pastor of Grace Methodist Church, officiating. Burial will be in Riverview Cemetery, and friends may call Friday evening.

Kelly, an ambulance driver in Company D, 119th Medical Regiment, was stricken several weeks ago with an internal disorder and efforts to save his life at the New Orleans hospital proved futile. His father visited him about a week ago.

Surviving, in addition to his father, are three brothers, John W. Kelly, Jr., a veteran of 29 years' service in the navy, who is now at sea; George H. and Howard E. Kelly; a sister, Miss Edith Kelly, and his grandmother, Mrs. Margaret Kelly.

Schools Here Observe Free School Day

Free School Day is being marked today in the Bristol schools. It is the anniversary of approval by Governor George Wolf of an Act of the General Assembly providing for the establishment of a general system of education by common schools, in order that all the children of the Commonwealth would be assured equal educational opportunities.

In a proclamation issued by Governor Arthur H. James calling upon the schools of Pennsylvania to observe Free School Day it is stated:

"The vision and courage of the Governor and educational statesmen like Samuel Breck, Thaddeus Stevens, and other leaders of the time who so ardently advocated free public schools, were founded in the belief that real education was essential to a strong and enduring democracy."

"It is proper that we should celebrate Free School Day each year to remind us that our educational system is not merely something which has come to us, but has been won for us by men of the past who fought vigorously and valiantly for what we now enjoy."

Free School Day was designated as April 2nd but due to the Bristol schools closing today for the Easter holidays, the observance was held today.

Foremen and Supervisors Hold A Get-Together

Fleetwings foremen and supervisors took time out Monday night from their job of making airplane parts and held an informal, social get-together at the Bristol Elks Home.

After an ample buffet supper, short talks were given by Vice-Presidents, W. T. Graham, and Ira S. Wilson, following which two aviation motion pictures, both in sound, were shown. One showed the combat performance of the P-39 pursuit plane, the Aircobra, which is built by the Bell Aircraft Corporation, and the other, "America First in the Air" was furnished by the Propeller Division of Curtiss-Wright. It pictured the manufacture of Curtiss propellers.

According to W. E. Strang, who arranged the affair, more get-togethers are planned for the future.

It has been decided to petition the Eastern District Conference, with which the local church is affiliated, to ordain the Rev. Russell L. Mast, the pastor, as an elder. This likely will take place at sessions of conference in Allentown in May.

The following delegates have been appointed to represent the congregation at conference: Rev. and Mrs. Russell L. Mast, Rev. Allen M. Fretz, Ely R. Fretz, Charles F. Wasser, Harvey D. Hunsberger, Harvey H. Baum and Harvey M. Wismer.

U. S. Army Plays Important Role in "The Bugle Sounds"

The U. S. Army plays a spectacular starring role with Wallace Beery at the Grand Theatre in "The Bugle Sounds," story of the new mechanized forces. The picture comes tomorrow.

The result is a picture of realistic action, with the regular army enacting its stirring role in the contemporary plan of defense. Thousands of tanks, simulating wartime conditions, plunge across the screen. Dive bombers drop their "eggs" and soldiers run, ride and crawl for cover. The shots were filmed under supervision of army officers assigned for the purpose.

This, however, turns out to be a ruse arranged in order that the sergeant may work his way into the good graces of a band of saboteurs. When they plan to wreck a shipment of tanks, he captures them and is rewarded with new honor medals for the collection already gleaming on his broad chest.

TOT HAS PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. William Frake, Cedar street, gave a birthday party for their son, William, who was four years old on Sunday. Games were played and refreshments served. Favors were pink and green snappers. William received many gifts. Those present: Pasquale DiRenzo, William Claus, Helmut and Dolores Frake, of Bristol; John Frake, Edgely.

APRIL FOOLS

The origins of April Fool's Day have defied research, but it is supposed to have been part of ancient celebrations of the vernal equinox. At first, doubtless, there was a certain poetic charm in pastoral shenanigans.

Some modern manifestations of April Fool have been mechanical, harsh and even cruel. The true jest is spontaneous, not organized or requiring elaborate equipment. To be made a fool of is hard enough. Never was there a victim who liked it, although it is sporting to pretend that one's amusement at being a victim is uproarious.

Spring, since Hitler began to stride Europe, has become a sinister season. Not sinister is the crocus, the returning bird, the gentle wind, the drifting cloud or the warming sun. These things are still of good report. What have spring offensives to do with these? Nothing, except to remind man that he is a fool.

As an individual, man would like at this season to recline upon a bank and contemplate the skies; to get out in the woods and hear the rustle of winter's dead leaves beneath his feet, to wet a line and hope that a shadow will materialize into a trout. Not as individual, but as mass, man cannot do that. He must arm and prepare to march, kill and prepare to kill. So spring passes.

How to cure this foolishness is not apparent. But faith that it can be cured sustains England, when April comes at its greenest, and faith that it can be cured by burying its modern proponents under steel and lead inspires America to do just that, come what may.

THE ARMY HORSE

So great is the emphasis on the machine in the land fighting of this war that little public attention is attracted to the essential part that the horse is playing. Hitler used 800,000 (not including supply trains) in his invasion of the Low Countries and France, according to United States War Department figures, although the roads were the best in the history of warfare. Half his transport was horse-drawn.

The Germans relied on twenty-four cavalry divisions to stand guard on the Russian frontier. They reinforced their horse units for the invasion of Russia. But the Russians used fifty cavalry divisions in turning the German thrust. Horse-drawn field artillery was used effectively against Hitler during the winter campaign when the motor equipment on which some of his armored divisions relied failed.

The fact that these armies, the strongest in the world, rely on cavalry to a large extent has, of course, greatly influenced the reorganization of the American Army.

According to current plans, the American Army will have about the same proportion of cavalry. Some of the new cavalry divisions are partly mechanized, provision is made for trucking horses and men to the point of use, and cavalrymen are equipped with the varied weapons of infantry to fight dismounted. Cavalry's reconnaissance function is combined with air observation.

Over terrain that defies motor equipment, in mud and swamps, and when the air force is blinded by fog, horse units are vital to the functioning of an army. The army horse is not as important as in pre-motor days, but the army that is not well supplied with horses is no more than a level-ground, fair-weather army.

The Council heard reports of what was being done and what has been accomplished by the various agencies organized here for emergency service. These reports showed that there are hundreds of people in Bristol working with a determination to be prepared to aid others should the occasion arise.

Herbert A. Pettit was named as a committee of one to contact the Boy Scouts and work out details of organizing this group for service.

tions" which so enraged Miss Dorothy Thompson that she characterized it as "unmitigated bilge" and expressed the hope that the series would not fall into the hands of the Germans and Japanese. For them, she declared, they would be very valuable as a morale builder. From an entirely different angle, Mr. Walter Lippmann last week, commenting upon the reasons the Administration publicity neither inspired confidence nor carried conviction, pointed out that its incurable defect is that it is essentially a handout, unchecked for accuracy and untested for truth.

STILL another indictment came a few days ago from the Washington Evening Star, which printed a group of publicity department pictures showing our soldiers in Puerto Rico dancing with the local beauties; having a grand time at the local race track; feasting at heavily laden banquet tables, and listening to the banjo playing of the Puerto Rican senoritas. With completely unconscious humor, all these pictures are labeled by the publicity department as showing "the precautions our Government has taken to insure complete defense against any enemy."

THE Star states further that the newspaper of the nation are being literally smothered under the load of pictures from army publicity agencies. It estimates that it—a single newspaper—receives weekly from these agencies pictures costing approximately $100. It asserts that it has received, all told, 157 separate army ski pictures, some 28 of which were duplicated by the commercial picture services to which it subscribes. The facts tell the story and comment is hardly necessary. Here is a state of affairs which everybody knows to be wrong, which no one, except those on the pay roll, defends, and which according to News-Week is actually impeding the normal postal operations.

THE question is—how long is it to continue? Drastic curtailment both in size and cost is part of the Byrd committee's program and a determined move along these lines will be made. How far it will get is uncertain. One certain thing is that the resistance will be very strong. The publicity agents whom the Byrd committee would like to reduce will play a leading, though undercover, part in the effort to CONCEDING that much Administration publicity is valuable—and even, indispensable—no unprejudiced man can justify the extent to which it has been expanded under this Administration. No one can defend its development into what is one of the most wasteful and absurd of all governmental activities. No one can excuse the failure to coordinate and control its output. It is distressing, if ironical, that the agency supposed to do the coordinating is, itself, adding to the volume of war publicity—and not improving it. This is not the way to bolster the national morale—rather the reverse. Even the best products of this uncoordinated machine are drowned in the overwhelming confusion.

SO bad is the present state of affairs that recently the President ordered a survey to be made with another "reorganization" in view. He is now being urged to coordinate all propaganda and publicity under a single head and several new men have been suggested. The fear is that this will not result in the greatly needed shrinkage and may result in lessening the effectiveness of the foreign propaganda, which is being well done under the Donovan organization, but which logically should be under the War Department. It is an essential part of the military machine and should be directed by the military authorities.

The Laboratory Seven team chalked up its third straight victory in the Rohm and Haas Social Club round-robin tournament, defeating the Crystallite five, 37-15, in a one-sided match. In the other tilt played, the Machine Shop downed the Main Office force, 37-28.

The undefeated Laboratory team played a fine defensive game and succeeded in holding down the Crystallites throughout. Only one player on the losing team was able to score from the floor and that was Joe Roe who dropped in six double-deckers to score 12 of the 15 points.

Anthony Castor's Machine Shop contingent kept behind the heels of the leaders by adding their second victory of the tourney in dealing with the Office force. The "white collar" boys staged an uprising in the third quarter which saw them cut down the Machine Shop lead from 9 points to three. This was shaved to within a point at the start of the last canto but the Machine Shop braced themselves and with Gallagher and Petrick leading the attack left the Office force behind.

Petrick led the machinists in the victory with six double-deckers and a foul for thirteen points. Ken Jolly had 12 points to lead the Office team.

SOFTBALL LEAGUE HOLDS FIRST MEETING

The Bristol Softball League held its first meeting of the season last night in the Diamond Sporting Goods store, Mill street, with four teams in attendance. Several other teams signified their intentions of joining the circuit but were not present last night.

The teams represented were: Franklin A. C., Fifth Ward Sporting Club, Bancroft-Hickey, and Profy. It was decided to contact two or four more teams to have either an eight or a six-team loop. The franchise fee has been increased and indications point to a successful season.

Daniel DiLorenzo was elected temporary chairman and he stated that if his plans succeed with an eight-team league a 35-game schedule will be worked out.

It was decided to hold another meeting next Tuesday night at which time forfeits will be posted. All teams interested in the meantime are requested to contact DiLorenzo at 229 Cedar St. or the Diamond Sporting Goods store.

Learns Sensations Experienced On U. S. "Sub"

200-odd feet of our ship and its hundreds of tons of precision machinery and steel were sliding nose downward. I awaited some indefinable, expected discomfort—possibly heavy pressure in my large red ears or some kind of bottom-dropping-away sensation like one gets in a downflying Manhattan elevator.

I felt nothing more unusual than the slight roll of the sea. We had submerged at an angle of only eight degrees, and Captain Davidson explained it is rare, indeed, when a sub slips under much faster.

The submarine continued downward until it was more than 125 feet beneath the surface.

I stood in the control room. Trained men watched hands flicking back and forth on intricate dials and turned large spoke wheels and pulled levers until our ship levelled off.

It all seemed as safe as being in your parlor reading the afternoon paper until one of the indicators showed we had come too close to the bottom. I felt apprehensive.

Captain Davidson relayed a quick order. His expression was one of utter seriousness until the passage of those few moments it required to nose upward and avoid crunching along the ocean floor.

The Skipper decided then to come up for what he called a "look around."

Our periscope was raised.

I peered through it and sighted the Allied merchantman.

The ship was more than three miles to our port, the Skipper said, when we first sighted her.

With periscope still up, our submarine moved closer to the merchantman, and it apparently thought we were a German U-boat. It came about and fled.

The sight of the Allied craft, neatly framed in our telescopic periscope lens, provoked me to wonder what semi-sadistic thoughts must whirl through the mind of a Nazi sub skipper as he prepares for the easy kill of a helpless victim.

Captain Davidson then ordered our ship to surface to allay any fears of the merchantman's master.

As we were emerging, the sound of our motors was broken by a clanging alarm.

I didn't know what dangers it signified, but it was apparent that everything wasn't as placid as it would have been if a cowbell had sounded.

Men scurried about the boat on double-quick. Each took a place and stood by for further orders.

The Captain told us that a call to battle stations had sounded.

(Note: The Navy Department deleted reasons for the alarm.)

Uncle Sam's submarine lads lose no time in swinging into action.

In the course of our trip, we had a lengthy chat with the ruddy, lean Pennsylvanian who skipped us.

Captain Davidson, 34, feels there is no more hazard in submarine service than in a game of hide and seek. "As long as you keep your eye on the ball in this business," he said, "there is little danger. Anyway, war is no picnic no matter how you happen to be involved in it."

He escorted me to all quarters of his ship. They were crowded, but green mattresses in the crew's bunks gave this complicated machinery or destruction an almost homey touch.

Up in the bow, near the 20-foot-long torpedoes stood a brass Buddha. It was sort of a "luck piece" some of the crew had picked up in China.

Submarine war, however, requires more than luck. Training, skill and moxie are prerequisites, and I know American undersea warriors have them all.

Restorative Art Described For Bensalem Rotarians

ANDALUSIA, Apr. 1.—One of the first pieces of community activity carried out by members of Bensalem Rotary Club is the project of re-furnishing the nurse's room at Bensalem Township high school. The club is replacing furnishings, blankets and other equipment gradually, and has already made some purchases.

The Rev. Arthur F. Gibson presided at the dinner meeting at the Red Lion Inn last evening.

The speaker, J. S. Mayer, an instructor at a Philadelphia embalming school, addressed the members, he being introduced by Harold H. Haefner.

Mr. Mayer dwelt on various phases of restorative art, describing the modelling of noses, lips, etc., in cases of death where disfigurement has been caused. He modelled for enlightenment of the Rotarians, lips of wax. General details of the embalming profession were also presented. Mr. Mayer also showed some masks fashioned from living models.

Favors arranged on the table were in keeping with the Easter season.

used by the team that has not lost a match in three years, a team that has won 54 straight, together with the championship of the "Spira League"—the Southeastern Pennsylvania Inter-scholastic Rifle Association. Topping the back of the menu cards was a newspaper picture of the team, and a record of the team.

During the course of the evening, Coach Boshel on behalf of Mrs. George Sommer, of Doylestown, presented the new "George Sommer Memorial Trophy Cup" to the league champion, Miss Agnes Gerhart is captain of the Doylestown team this year. The cup will be awarded annually to the champion shooter of the Spira League, in memory of Mrs. Sommer's late husband, who was one of Doylestown High's No. 1 athletic boosters.

Miss Gerhart, who was praised by speakers as "the finest girl shooter in this section of the United States," thanked Mrs. Sommer for her fine public-spirited gesture in making possible a championship trophy.

A number of speakers addressed the gathering.

Richard C. Linsenmaier, former Doylestown high school athlete and well-known community football player, who is the fifth Doylestown fireman to enter the armed forces, has enlisted in the U. S. Navy and is stationed in Philadelphia.

"Reds," who is a Seaman (Second Class) and studying to be an aviation metalsmith, is the first active member of Doylestown fire company to en-

With the removal of the Edison Machine Shop from Edison to Doylestown in September, 1941, the county seat has a new war time industry on its manufacturing horizon.

The Edison Machine Shop includes in its personnel Norman J. Villard, works manager; Albert J. Craig, shop foreman; and R. Stanley Osborn, procurement manager, who are making the new industry one of the most progressive here.

Because of the nature of the work, which includes the manufacture of war-time materials, Manager Villard is not able to disclose the type of the work being done in the machine shop.

He said about 25 men are employed in the establishment which went to Edison in 1938.

When the quarters became too small the company decided to locate at Doylestown and they have been making headway ever since, working at full-time capacity.

The meeting, in charge of the president, Mrs. Oliver Bowman, opened with the devotional service which was conducted by Rev. Julian H. King.

Benjamin Beck, the cubmaster, gave a report of the activities of the cubs, and thanked the association for sponsoring the cub pack. The report of the Boy Scouts was given by Scoutmaster William Gilbert, who said five of the scouts had enjoyed an overnight hike to Camp Ockanickon, near Point Pleasant, recently. He announced that the troop had also gained one new member.

During the business session, Mrs. Frank C. Orgill and Mrs. Paul Detweiler were appointed delegates to represent the association at the Spring assembly of the Bucks County Council of Parents and Teachers in Buckingham on Saturday, April 18th. Mrs. Grenfell Beck was designated to visit the school next month.

Calls Upon Diplomats
To Adopt "Realistic" Policy

Uncle Sam's diplomats were called upon today to adopt a "realistic" attitude toward South America's needs and to cease immediately the exportation of "cultural missionaries from Hollywood" to the Latin countries.

"We have been sending too many cultural missionaries from Hollywood, who have been creating the impression in Latin America that we are engaged in a movie-war," declared Dean Carl W. Ackerman of the Columbia University Graduate School of Journalism.

"To be realistic, we must not expect our good neighbors to turn our southern flank into a southern front," Dean Ackerman told a Kiwanis meeting, "until and unless we are prepared to aid them with colossal quantities of war materials."

Ackerman, who recently returned from a 14,000-mile journey in South America, denied that Argentina is "pro-Axis," adding: "Argentina is pro-Argentina, even if diplomatic relations have not been broken with our enemies."
